What is the Covid outlook of hospital administrators in urban areas in the US South?

We contacted a dozen Hospital Administrators with cumulative insight into 12k+ hospital beds concentrated in cities of Dallas, Houston, Tampa Bay, Orlando, and Jacksonville from June 18th through June 22nd of 2020.

Do you believe demand for beds for Covid-19 patients will exceed your hospital's capacity?

What do you believe is the best explanation for the recent decoupling of Covid-19 hospitalization and deaths?

- “ Better Treatments. ”
- “ Improved understanding of disease and ICU care, anticiagulation. ”
- “ Lower Acuity better treatments with more history. ”
- “ Better Treatment plans as more data is uncovered. ”

Do you believe that your hospital will dedicate all of its beds to Covid-19 (i.e. halt elective patient activity)?

Do you currently expect there to be a vaccine available prior to the upcoming flu season?

- “ I am about 50/50 on this. I am hopeful that companies will find one, but it may not be prior to september. ”
- “ Hopeful, but not expecting... ”
- “ I am hopefully confident! ”

What is the current mortality rate you expect of hospitalized Covid-19 patients?
